Kia ora tatou

I hope you're well. I've just been enjoying lunch time activities: lots of energetic Primary Netball trial call-backs (very intense!) and a very full Library, with students doing a combination of revision and Young Enterprise work.

There have been no new positive tests in the last 24 hours, I'm pleased to say, continuing the trend of low numbers of cases in school. There will, I'm sure, still be a few positive tests in the next week or so, but the trend seems very clear. Interesting statistical quirk: there have been no positive tests on a Monday for three weeks in a row. (The positive tests I reported yesterday were all from the weekend.) And it is exactly two weeks since we last had a student in College who may have been infectious.

We tested a very small number of returning students this morning. All tests were negative.

Enjoy the rest of your day,
Alex.
